Calling All Photographers! NALT Needs 2017 Calendar Photos

The deadline for you to send us your photos has been extended to Sunday, July 10th. We need you to take a trip through your photo files, and find up to five of your recent—or not so recent—prize photos. If one of the photos you send is selected for the 2017 NALT calendar, you will receive 5 free calendars that you can share with family or friends as a perfect gift for the holiday season. Even if your photo doesn't get used for the 2017 calendar, it may be used by NALT in a future calendar, or in other ways—such as notecards, posters, or newsletters. You will be notified whenever we do use one, and you will get the credit each and every time.

Here's what we are looking for:

Photos that feature natural areas NALT is—or has been—involved with; including the Linley Valley, Mount Benson (and views from), Harewood Plains, pretty much all the creeks and rivers (and their watersheds) in and around Nanaimo (with extra emphasis these days on the Nanaimo River), Martha's Place in Qualicum Bay (now a NALT property), Hamilton Marsh, Moorecroft Park, the Yellowpoint Lodge property, the Parnassian Woods (Van Kerkoerle property in Cassidy—also now a NALT property), sites on Lasqueti Island, South Winchelsea Island, Gabriola Island and Mudge Island, plus local area parks where NALT has been involved with invasive species removal and habitat projects over the past 21+ years. Also welcome are close-ups of flora and fauna generally found throughout the Nanaimo region.

If you have a great photo of some site or feature in the Nanaimo area that we have missed on this list, send it in for consideration. We generally do not use photos that feature people or pets, but a figure in the background enjoying an outdoor activity or a hiking group can add context to the "story". As you may have noticed, each year we try to select a balance of images that match with an appropriate month or season.

How to participate?

For photos to be usable for the calendar, they need to be formatted in landscape (wide, not tall) and in a high enough resolution for clarity when they are enlarged to the calendar size of 8 1/2" x 11" (3MB or more). Please email your photos to paul@nalt.bc.ca or drop off a digital copy at the NALT office.

Please share with us your special photos depicting the natural beauty that makes this area such a great place to live. Remember: Deadline for the 2017 calendar is Sunday, July 10th at midnight—but we welcome submissions any time before then. Please take time to take a trip through memory lane this weekend.

Natural Abundance Native Plant Nursery

The NALT Native Plant Nursery continues to be open on Wednesdays and Saturdays—operated by a dedicated core of volunteers. We have been pleased with many shoppers who often come with interesting plant and garden questions and ideas. This spring has been a busy time—planting seeds, nurturing plants, and serving customers. We have more shrubs and trees that were propagated in the cold months than we've had for several years. Volunteers and friends of the nursery salvaged plants on Gabriola Island and at the Nanaimo Fish Hatchery. We are grateful for generous hosting by Dean Gaudry, and Harmac and the Hatchery.

This spring, the nursery participated in three community events: the RDN World Water Day, NALT's Wild Foods Festival that partnered once again with the City of Nanaimo's Earth Day celebrations, and the Morrell Nature Sanctuary's annual plant sale. It has been a busy and bountiful season, and we always enjoy the turn of weather that invites us to enjoy our lunch outside under the big cedar tree.

As we move into warmer, drier months the time comes for extra care of plants and gardens, including lots of watering, mulching and weeding. The RDN has once again asked us to supply small plants and seeds for their Water Smart community events over the summer months. We appreciate this dependable plant order from April through October, and we believe that this cooperative partnership is a great way to promote the use of drought-resistant native plants and water-saving efforts. We are also looking ahead to plant orders for fall restoration projects.

There are a few ways you can help the native plant nursery:

- Come for a visit and a tour—and invite your friends and neighbours to join you. We always welcome new volunteers too!
- Consider purchasing recycled tools, composters, homemade planters and birdhouses. Volunteers are having a "greenhouse sale" (like garage sale, only a bit different).
- Keep watch for, collect, and donate native seeds if you have excess in your garden. They should be stored in paper to ensure they stay dry and cool. Dropping off seeds at the NALT office is an option, or give us a call to make other arrangements.

Happy Solstice from the nature-loving *Natural Abundance

A Special Summer Celebration

This summer, as we gather in Cassidy at our annual August picnic, one item will stand out as a very special reason to celebrate. As you read in the March newsletter and in the Nanaimo News Bulletin, a special gift has been made from Anneke and Peter Van Kerkoerle to NALT: their property, the Parnassian Woods, with a Life Estate on title that assures they will continue to live on the land and treat it as their own. This gift will endure as a legacy and a tribute to the Van Kerkoerles' stewardship of the land and their love of the environment.

The Parnassian Woods is not only the site of Peter and Anneke's home, not just the location of the Natural Abundance Native Plant Nursery, and not simply a favourite place to gather and celebrate; it is also a fine example of balance between agriculture and natural habitat: while 10 acres of the 40-acre property was farmed by Peter as a commercial asparagus production, the rest of the land has been preserved for its natural values and actively enhanced by Peter and Anneke in the nearly 50 years that they have lived on it. The woodland area, featuring a coastal Douglas fir Biogeoclimatic zone, is a popular and tranquil location for walks along trails that wind through tall trees full of many bird species, past rocky outcrops covered with wildflowers in spring, and alongside a wetland full of red-legged frogs and other water-loving critters.

This summer's celebration, set for Saturday, August 13th, will be more than just a NALT picnic; this year will be an Open House event—inviting all of the Nanaimo & Area community to join us for hourly guided walks, local live music, wild salmon BBQ with all the fixings, and a special tribute to Anneke and Peter.

2016 Smolt-Trap Project on Departure Creek

In March 2016, a scientific permit was issued to allow NALT, the Departure Bay Neighbourhood Association, the Snuneymuxw First Nation, the City of Nanaimo, and Fisheries and Oceans Canada (DFO) to work together to operate an instream trap to collect Coho smolt data on Departure Creek. This project involved and promoted stewardship education for adults as well as local students, and was supported and mentored by personnel from DFO.

Departure Creek has historically been the home of Coho and Chum salmon, as well as resident and sea-going Cutthroat trout—although in recent years no Chum salmon have returned to the creek. A Coho smolt is a one year old Coho salmon, still living in fresh water. Smolts begin life as eggs deposited in the creek gravel. From this start, they develop into alevin, fry, parr, and finally smolts. Smolting prepares the young salmon to adapt from fresh water to living in salt water, where they will grow into adults. Once they have developed into smolts, the young salmon head downstream and leave the river or creek for the sea—in this case, Departure Bay.

This first-time Departure Creek smolt-trap project, which began operating in mid-April, was located on a private property on Bay Street behind the 7/11. The trap remained operational until the end of May. The fish encountered the trap on their emigration to the sea. This year's project confirmed the presence of Coho salmon, Cutthroat trout, sculpin, stickleback and crayfish residing in Departure Creek.

Trained Streamkeepers, members of the Island Waters Fly Fishers, local residents and other community volunteers monitored the trap on a daily basis, early each morning. The volunteers were divided into seven teams, each team assigned to a specific day of the week. The team identified and recorded measurements of Coho smolts captured in the trap, before releasing them to continue their journey to the sea. Other aquatic species caught in the trap were also recorded and released. At the same time, with the aid of instruments, each team collected important water quality information—such as water levels and temperature, dissolved oxygen levels, turbidity and pH levels, as well as air temperature and weather conditions. Students from the Departure Bay Eco School, accompanied by their teachers, also participated in the monitoring activities.

A coho smolt is measured and recorded by volunteers on Departure Creek.

The final tally of Coho smolts documented in Departure Creek over the six-week period numbered 50—a small number in comparison to less-impacted creeks and rivers, but still significant. It clearly demonstrates that a small neighbourhood creek that has been subjected to de-forestation, plus the pressures of urbanization, runoff and pollution, can be restored and produce wild salmon in our backyards—as long as we continue to be good stewards and enhance, protect and care for the creek and its occupants.

The information collected by this group of volunteer citizen-scientists has now been submitted to Fisheries and Oceans Canada, to be entered into their stock-assessment database. The information will also assist in the planning and funding support for future stream enhancement work on Departure Creek. It is hoped that the Coho smolt trap project in Departure Creek will become a yearly event, and that it will continue to educate and inform the community on the health and status of this important natural resource in the Departure Bay neighbourhood. It is also hoped that sometime into the future the tally of Coho smolts counted may even increase—thanks to ongoing stewardship and habitat enhancement of Departure Creek.

Streamkeeper Workshops

Thanks to funding from the Real Estate Webmasters, augmented by NALT stewardship funding provided by BC Gaming, NALT was able to host two Streamkeeper Workshops this spring—one in March focused on Departure Creek, the second in April focusing on Haslam Creek. Biologist Dave Clough led both sessions with his signature style of instruction: energetic and extremely knowledgeable. Both courses were filled to capacity, with participants from as far afield as Victoria and Port Alberni. There was even interest expressed from the Sunshine Coast.

Fish biologist, Dave Clough, leads Streamkeepers in identifying invertebrates living in Haslam Creek.

Comments from participants at the end of each two-day session were invariably enthusiastic about the Workshop. Registrants learned about the structures and indicators of healthy rivers, how to measure and record the health of creeks, and various restoration and enhancement activities that can improve fish habitat.

A favourite component for many participants is about bugs—finding and identifying the kinds of bugs that live in streams, and what their presence reveals about water quality. The funding provided allowed NALT to waive the usual Workshop fees, so participants only had to purchase the $30 Streamkeepers Handbook.

With such a resurgence of interest in this training, and an ever present-need for people in our communities who are trained and ready to steward our beleaguered rivers and streams, NALT will seek to secure funding to provide ongoing Streamkeepers Workshops—hopefully one each fall and spring.

Wild Foods Festival 2016

After a one-year hiatus, NALT's ever-popular Wild Foods Festival was back in time to partner with Earth Day celebrations this year. The first festival was held in 2010, and in 2011 we changed the format somewhat to team up with the City of Nanaimo's Earth Day celebrations. In 2015, the festival had to be canceled due to a shortage of fresh wild foods available to chefs—a result of an early, dry, hot spring.

With lowered expectations and not a little trepidation, we began planning for this year's event. Another warm early spring heightened our worries, but soon cooler weather calmed our nerves. As chefs and vendors came onboard, enthusiasm began to build. On the day of the festival, the rain that was predicted held off, the hoped-for crowds arrived, and we knew we had a recipe for success.

Folks lined up to sample the delectable treats like those offered by the VIU Culinary students

And a success it was! The quality of food samples served by participating chefs was excellent; the live music provided an upbeat for the day; vendors sold a wide range of wares—from fresh local produce and plants, to arts and crafts, clothing and herbal teas; and a delicious wild foods cooking demonstration and sampling session, followed by a circle discussion about developing local farm co-ops, provided interactive experiences for the community to savour.

From the feedback received, it was a great day and a great way to renew the Wild Foods Festival and Earth Day Celebration as one of Nanaimo's most popular events of the season. Watch for this perennial celebration of spring once again in 2017.

Thanks to the chefs, musicians, vendors, presenters and attendees. Thanks also to festival sponsors who helped to cover our costs: Environmental Dynamics Inc. (Gold); Save on Foods (Silver); and McLean's Specialty Foods, Mid-Island Co-op, Paradise Island Foods Inc., and Quality Foods at University Village (Bronze).

NALT AGM

On June 8th, at the Kin Hut in Departure Bay, NALT held its 21st Annual General Meeting—with 45 members in attendance. All reports, from the Treasurer's to the Nursery Committee's, spoke to the breadth of activities engaged in by NALT, and the value and quality of volunteer contributions of time and talents. Additionally, Wally Wells gave a brief overview of upcoming changes to the BC Societies Act, and how these will trigger a review of NALT's Bylaws to ensure that we comply with the changes. It may impact, among other things, NALT's future method of conducting Board elections to ensure compliance and to allow for a more informed vote. Essentially, these changes may require a nomination cut-off for new and returning Directors, and an electoral information package being distributed prior to the AGM. The 2015 Year-end Financial Statements, prepared by Palmer Leslie CPA, were approved unanimously.

For this year, the Board election was conducted in the same manner as has been NALT's practice in the past 20 years. Allan Hawryzki and Wally Wells stood for re-election, while Jennifer Davidson had previously indicated she would not be standing for another term, citing travel plans and other commitments. It was noted that Jennifer contributions to NALT have been outstanding. Whether organizing the Wine & Cheese Soiree, helping with stream stewardship, or participating in discussions, Jennifer has always done her homework, thought through the fine details, and added her well informed voice to the debate. Thank you Jennifer.

From the NALT archives: Nina Evans-Locke stands in the midst of a Project 2000 team as she is presented with the first ever Voluntary Steward plaque from NALT.

A light build-your-bun supper was provided to offer sustenance and an interlude to the second half of the evening. Immediately following supper, a raffle draw for a painting of the Nanaimo River by Tom Hutton was held, which was won by Karen Hovestad.

The evening was capped with a fast-paced and information-packed presentation by Guy Dauncey, author of his most recent book titled Journey to the Future: A Better World is Possible—a visionary fiction that is also a fact-filled blizzard of carefully researched changing times and technologies. Guy's presentation and his book offer hopeful and concrete ways to meet and mitigate the challenges of climate change, while improving our communities and our quality of life. Guy acknowledged the incredible strides humanity has made during the era of fossil fuels, and his book heralds our transition to a low-carbon future.

Two new Directors, Nina Evans-Locke and Louise Manson, both of whom had previously approached NALT expressing their interest in joining the NALT Board, were nominated at the meeting and, along with Allan and Wally, were elected by acclamation to the Board by the assembled members—bringing the number of current Board Directors to 10 out of a possible total of 15, as per NALT's current Bylaws. There were no further nominations from the floor.

Louise Mason brings a wealth of business and non-profit experience to the NALT Board.

Bottles for the River

The good news, the less-good news and the other good news...

The good news is it seems fewer folks are drinking out of single-use refundable containers—and a lot fewer (of our supporters, at least) are using single-use plastic water bottles. The flip side of that (the less-good news) is less money to be made at bottle drives. On Saturday, April 2nd NALT collected just over $730 worth of returnable containers. Nothing to sneeze at, but a marked decline from our best hauls in years gone by. The other good news is that, the same week, we received a cheque for nearly $690, representing several months of returnables that our supporters have taken the time to transport to the two Nanaimo Regional Recycling depots on Hayes Road (across from Country Club Centre) and Victoria Road (in the south end), sorted them, and asked the staff to “put it on the NALT account”. Together, these two cheques added up to more than $1400—a respectable fundraising total.

As always, the efforts of the day were made more enjoyable by a great cohort of NALT volunteers who donned their green t-shirts and worked elbow to elbow in good humour and harmony. Thanks to our indomitable volunteers, and to all the loyal donors who dropped off their refundables.

Thanks, also, to Lucky's Liquor Store and the Country Club Centre for hosting the event, to the Country Grocer (Southgate) for supplying the food for our volunteers' lunch, and to Starbucks (University Village) for keeping us all caffeinated. And, thanks to Kevin from Regional Recycling, who put in an extra long day looking after our needs and those of several other bottle drives on the day.

Our next Bottles for the River will happen on Saturday, July 9th (the first Saturday after the long weekend), from 9:00 am until 2:30 pm in the parking lot beside Lucky's Liquor Store at Country Club Centre. Hope to see you there!
